

Chance to voice their views

The 'Reflection Team' of the school magazine's publication group organised a debate competition for those who love to share their opinions in public. The organizers did not fail to stir up excitement among the audience as the contest was open to all. Audience members, in addition to the debaters, were free to express their thoughts as well.

First, students were grouped into teams according to their classes. The morning debate topics centred on academic life, while the afternoon's debate topics were proposed by each team.

Topics like 'Gender Equality Gap' and 'Animal Testing' offered new perspectives on these controversial subjects. Even juniors had the chance to discuss topics like 'The importance of Success over Happiness' and 'Logic over Science'. The juniors were no less vocal than their seniors when it came to proving their point! Overall, it was a Saturday well-spent. Being able to co-judge the senior debate and host the junior debate with my peers made it an experience to remember.
